PATAGONIA, ARGENTINA

Limay River

Migratory Trophy Browns & Rainbows

This massive river flows north out of the Nahuel Huapí lake for 240 miles with a flow of 700 cubic meters per second. The area we fish is from the "Piedra del Aguila" dam up to the beginning of the reservoir of the "Chocón" dam, about 50 miles.
The "trout of a lifetime" is possible as the big fish leave the reservoir and start up the river in the fall (April and May) to get to their spawning grounds. Fishing is done from Drift-boats and Catamarans for two anglers and a guide.

DURATION & SEASON

6 Nights / 5 Days

Season: April – May

WADING & DRIFT BOATS

Perfect for single or two-handed rods, with options for wading and targeting migrating large fish.

A SPECIAL EXPERIENCE

Limay River

Fishing the Limay river where all techniques are used: light gear with floating lines for targeting the resident browns and rainbows, and heavier gear with fast sinking lines for the migrating large fish.

SPEY CASTING

Spey Casting

The Limay River is also ideal for Spey Casting. Our guides are all Spey Casting instructors and are pioneers in the instruction of this casting technique. They have the gear and more than 15 years' experience to instruct you in the Spey Cast.

Note on Fall Weather: As our fishing here is done in early to mid-fall, it can be cold, ranging from a few degrees below freezing to the early sixties in Fahrenheit. Layers of clothing and rain gear are a must. Though not absolutely necessary, waders are highly recommended to keep your legs warm and dry, and to allow you to step off the boat to complete the fight.

ESQUINA, MIGHTY PARANÁ

The Golden Treasure

The dorado — known as the "Golden King" — is one of the most sought-after freshwater game fish in the world. Renowned for its explosive strikes, acrobatic fights, and stunning golden coloration.
Our lodge on the Upper Paraná offers private access to some of the best dorado waters in Argentina, with comfortable accommodations and expert guides who know every stretch of the river. The tropical environment of the Mighty Paraná provides a completely different experience from Patagonia — warm weather, lush vegetation, and the raw power of one of South America's mightiest rivers.

SEASON & CLIMATE

Best fishing from March to October (Fall to mid Spring). Temperatures range between 10°C (50°F) and 30°C (86°F). Quick drying fishing wear and layers recommended.

FISHING METHODS

Fishing is done from skiffs with a 60HP outboard motor and an electric trolling motor, with two anglers and a guide per boat.
